Paris, April 6.—The arrival of King Edward in Paris today was the occasion for a notable manifestation of Anglo-French cordiality, which is being generally interpreted tonight as a conspicuous response to Germany's attitude regarding Morocco, although the king remained but a short time, He was met outside the city by President in the manifestation of the Anglo-French entente."

He was met outside the city by President Loubet, who held a private conversation with his majesty lasting nearly an hour. The details of the conversation excite a wide range of speculation, but its actual purpose has not been disclosed. However, a semi-official communication recites that the meeting had far less reserve than that between King Edward and President Loubet last year, and that it was marked by the freedom of the confidences exchanged.

marked by the freedom of the conficiences exchanged.

Beyond this private conversation, King Edward confined himself to the usual public expressions of good will. He spoke at the station of the pleasure a visit to France always gave him; but there was not the slightest public utterance having significance upon pending political affairs. In this respect the king's reserve is being compared with the freedom of Emperor William's recent utterances.

No Spectacular Features.

The passage of the king was unattended by any spectacular features, as it was the wish of the authorities to avoid a political demonstration. President Loubet joined the royal train at Pierrefitte station, where, surrounded by distinguished officials of both governments, the two rulers exchanged ernments, the two rulers exchanged their first greetings. The king conducted President Loubet to his private car, where conversation continued until the Lyons railway station was reached. Outside the station the crowd was held back by cordons of police, the absence of military display being noticeable. During the half-hour at the station King Edward continued to talk with President Loubet, and held an extended conference with the British ampassadar at Paris Sir Francish ish ambassador at Paris, Sir Francis Levison Bertie.

The semi-official communication rel ative to the meeting of King Edward and President Loubet says:

"It is natural to suppose the conversation between the king and the president led to an exchange of views upon all diplomatic questions of the day; but as neither has divulged the confidences it is necessary to receive with reserve the more or less ingenious diversions which will be placed in circulation. Judging, however, from external appearances, one cannot but remark that the meeting today was marked, not only by less reserve than that of last year, but notably by the greater freedom of the confidences exchanged."

Despite this official reserve, the public and press herald the meeting as most significant. The Journal Des

Debats says:
"It is a new affirmation of the Anglo-French entente, which will be followed by naval demonstrations by British and French squadrons."

UP LEADING LUMBER COMPANY

Chippewa Falls, Wis., April 6.—The injunction recently issued by the district court has been served on John Dielz, and his wife by a United States deputy marshal. The injunction restrains Dielz from interfering with a lumber drive at Cameron dam on Thornapples river.

Dielz claims that according to the deed which his wife holds she has control of the Cameron dam and has a right to ask 10 cents a thousand feet for all logs passing through the dam. Thus far Dielz alleges the company has driven about $8,000,000 feet, which means a claim of about $8,000, which must be settled. There are now about 20,000,000 feet lying high and dry above the dam. Dielz says that in March, 1904, he surveyed the farm and found that the Cameron dam was on his land. He therefore posted a notice not to trespass. Then Dielz claims the Chippewa company offered him $500 to give up all rights, which he refused.

Then the story went forth, according to Dielz, that he was guarding the dam with a Winchester rifle. Dielz says this was not true, that he has never aimed this rifle at any person.

On April 26, 1904, Dielz was served with an injunction from Judge Parish but the sheriff, according to Dielz, informed him that it did not amount to anything, that it was only a bluff. From that time on all efforts to apprehend Dielz failed until yesterday. An effort was made last July to bring the matter before the officers of the grand lodge of Free Masons of Wisconsin, but the plan fell through.

After Deputy United States Marshal Johns had served the injunction on Dielz and wife by a bit of strategy, Dielz struck Jonas in the face and ordered the marshal from the house at the point of a revolver. Dielz says he will not obey the injunction.
